Mr. Davis focuses on leading cross-border investment and strategic transactions for an array of large multinationals, governments, financial institutions, developers, investors, smaller and closely held private companies, boards of directors and special committees, particularly on infrastructure matters.

His expertise is primarily in the corporate commercial and finance practice areas, and also extends to a range of regulatory matters.

He previously worked at leading international law firms and completed his training contract with Dentons.

He has worked on transactions in over 20 jurisdictions and has advised his clients in APAC, EMEA and the Americas. He has experience advising state-owned enterprises in multiple jurisdictions in EMEA.

He has been recognized by Chambers Global and Legal 500. He is described by Legal 500 EMEA as being “very good at finding solutions”, “extremely responsive to client needs”, and “very thorough”.

Clients look to him for a range of legal, business, negotiations, and strategic capabilities needed to successfully close their complex transactions with optimal risk profiles.

He is problem solver with a reputation for a direct, business oriented, “clients first” approach and assisting clients on projects throughout their lifecycle.

He is a firm believer in giving back to the community, and a strong supporter of Save the Children International.
